

Master Plan Process

Two to four-year timeline for a master plan process

A park master plan is a conceptual plan that lays the groundwork for a site's long-term development and potential phased implementation. A park master plan is based on the community's preferences, the Parks & Community Services Board reviews and recommendations of a preferred park plan, and City Council review and adoption. A typical Master Planning process can take two to four years to complete. A park is constructed based on the Council adopted park master plan when Council approves funding.
